

The mucous membrane of the lower half of the anal canal:

- a) Is lined by columnar epithelium.
- b) Is thrown into vertical folds called anal column.
- c) Is sensitive to pain, temperature, touch and pressure. A
- d) Is supplied by the artery of the hindgut.
- e) Drains lymph mainly upward along the superior rectal artery.

2. Pectinate line:

- a) Is a gap between each anal column.
- b) Gives attachment to the involuntary anal sphincter.
- c) Encircles the upper end of the anal canal. A
- d) Indicates the level where the upper half of the anal canal joins the lower half.
- e) Forms the anorectal ring.

3. The lower lip is formed from:

- a) Maxillary prominences.
- b) Lateral nasal prominences.
- c) Mandibular prominences. A
- d) Frontonasal prominence.
- e) Medial nasal prominence.