

Dr. Sarah Ahmed Albassam

salbassam@ksu.edu.sa

EDUCATION

PhD. Computer and Information Science – November, 2018
University of Strathclyde, Glasgow, UK

M.Sc. Information System - June, 2012
King Saud University, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

B.Sc. Information Technology - July, 2007
King Saud University, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

WORK EXPERIENCE

Assistant Professor, Information System department, College of Computer and Information Science, King Saud University.	December 2018 – Now
--	---------------------

Lecturer, Information System department, College of Computer and Information Science, King Saud University.	August 2016 – December 2018
---	-----------------------------

Teaching Assistant, Information System department, College of Computer and Information Science, King Saud University.	April 2013 - August 2016
---	--------------------------

Teaching Assistant, E-transactions and Communications Deanship	August 2008 – April 2013
---	--------------------------

PUBLICATIONS

Albassam, S. & Ruthven, I. (2019). Dynamic aspects of relevance: differences in users' relevance criteria between selecting and viewing videos during leisure searches. Information Research, 1-17. (ISI Journal)

Albassam, S. & Ruthven, I. (2018). Users' relevance criteria for video in leisure contexts. Journal of Documentation, 74(1), 62-79. \(ISI Journal\)

UNIVERSITY AND PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Member, CCIS Strategic Partnerships Committee, King Saud University
Head, IS Graduation Project Committee, King Saud University
Member, Human Resource Committee, King Saud University

AWARDS

Best Doctoral Presentation Award – In recognition of outstanding presentation delivered on September 20, 2016 On ISIC 2016 Conference at the University of Zadar, Croatia

Distinction Award, Saudi Cultural Bureau in London – 2016

Distinction Award, Saudi Cultural Bureau in London - 2018