

This book is simply the M.A. Dissertation of the writer: "Al-Jurjani's Theory of NaZm and Halliday's Information Structure Theory: A Comparative Study." The importance of the study expounded in this book stems from the fact that relatively little attention has been given to Al-Jurjani's theory in relation to other linguists. No previous study of this volume has been done so as to spot the similarities and differences between Al-Jurjani and Halliday, and to apply Al-Jurjani's theory to written standard Arabic literary and factual utterances to see whether they are valid or not.

Al-Jurjani's Theory of nazm

Ahmed Abdel-Shafy Abdallah

Ahmed Abdel-Shafy Abdallah has been an instructor of English for 16 years. He has been working for King Saud University since June 2008. In addition to teaching general English, he has taught English for specific purposes as well as teaching undergraduate advanced courses in Riyadh Teachers College.

978-3-8465-5173-8

Abdallah

Ahmed Abdel-Shafy Abdallah

Al-Jurjani's Theory of NaZm and Halliday's Theory

A Comparative Study

LAP
LAMBERT
Academic Publishing